BREED THEATER

"The Slave," Biograph Theater of Roman Story.

Unexcelled advantages to produce perfect moving pictures, make it possible for the Breed theater to present the best in this line, and under this position comes the wonderful story of Rome entitled, "The Slave." In this appears a Roman maiden that is much sought by wealthy patricians, but given her hand to a poor artist, who has won her love. Years pass, and the maiden is shown with her artist husband, and suffering the pangs of poverty. Realizing that something must be done at once, she decides to make the sacrifice of her life and offer her at the slave market. This she does without the husband's knowledge and is bought by the wealthy patrician who formerly loved her. He is incensed to find out her misfortune at first, but as he hears her sad story, his heart is melted, and he hands her back to her loved one. As she enters her home, what a sight greets her. Grief has shattered the reason of her poor husband, and he is now a wreck. The subject, while intensely dramatic, comprises a series of most beautiful romances.

There are other grand portrayals of famous stories, and some excellent comedy.

Grace Alvin, the popular soprano singer from Boston, who made such a favorable impression here recently, will appear here again Monday evening, singing the latest and best in high class and illustrated songs.

THE AUDITORIUM.

Heading the bill for this week is "Cliff and Monty," which have an acrobatic novelty which is anything new seen here. The lady of the team performs a unique and difficult feat while balanced upon her knees. Mr. Montrose, late of the New York Hippodrome, is an exceedingly funny clown and an acrobat of no mean ability.

The ventriloquist with a production, "Cooper" will entertain and amuse with his original conception of Fun in a Barber Shop.

Sidney and McDonald will appear in a new and original sketch introduced by Mr. Sidney's clever impersonations. Caden and Clifford present an act which will be sure to please. Their catchy singing and neat dancing is of a most refined order.

The illustrated songs, which have proven so popular in the hands of Mr. Edwards Monday, will be sung by Bonnie, My Highland Lassie and No One Knows How Much I Miss You.

The feature picture for the first two days of the week is a biograph drama entitled "The Mills of the Gods." The rest of the pictures are well balanced with comedy and drama.

BROADWAY THEATER.

The famous Merry Widow, which is to be danced within this world famous opera is presented here at Broadway theater on Wednesday, Sept. 15, has probably provoked more comment than any other single feature of any theatrical production ever presented in this country or in Europe. The waltz is danced in the second act by Sonia, the wealthy Marsovia widow, and Prince Danilo, her lover. They are both high spirited and capricious and full of that foolish stubbornness which sometimes goes with love when youth holds sway.

The prince, who loves Sonia with all the ardor and passion of the slave, has told her, when plucked at some utterly irrelevant act, that he will never tell her of his love, nor does he until the very last moment of the opera. This waltz may be said to be symbolic of Sonia's efforts to have him tell her of his love, and the melody of his soul. This scene is laid in the summer garden of her home on the evening of a festival, which she has arranged for her countrymen. Into this scene comes Sonia and her lover. Their speech is full of questions and answers, but underneath the mask of flattery it can be seen that each is calling to the other.

THE GREAT AMERICAN PLAY.

"Paid in Full" at the Broadway Theater on Tuesday, Sept. 14.

Those who are curious about the theatre and no other single contributor to the present-day social structure possesses so general interest—will be entertained by some striking bits of information relative to a successful play. The play "Paid in Full," written by Eugene Walter, produced by the Wagenhals & Kemper Co., pronounced by public and critics the greatest and most enjoyable American drama of the time, and shown by actual proof to be the most notable success of the stage in this country has been known. Paid in Full is now in only its third year. Its second out of New York, yet it has been played a total of 22 weeks, with 2,012 performances.

This astonishing result was attained by five companies simultaneously in different parts of the United States and in Canada. Never before has any one play been acted by so many companies. No other play could have stood it. All this is due to the fact that the play is so well adapted for touring, covering the same territory repeatedly, demanded by theater managers for return engagements. It is frequently as many as five and six times, invariably doing bigger business on each "repeat."

Miss Mary Snow, an instructor in Pratt Institute, New York, has been called to Chicago to be supervisor of the household arts department in the public schools.

A Town Moved Six Miles.

The city of Brownville, which has stood on the records six miles distant from its local location for 45 years, now has the same local and actual location. Judge William Gallovey today granted a decree to reform the plat of the city and to correct errors which, though slight, made a tremendous difference in the legal location of the town. The original town of Brownville was laid out in the late 30's by Captain James Biskely, who is yet living at Brownville at the age of 95, being the oldest man in Linn county. Some mistakes were made by the surveyor who plotted the site, and when the plat was recorded in the court house in 1844 the clerk placed the letter "E" instead of the letter "V" in the starting point of the description, thus tying the plat to the northeast instead of the northwest corner of the township, and getting the town located six miles distant from its real site, or just north of the town of Crawfordville—Portland Oregon.
